V. Conclusion

Women's Care Center in Niles, Michigan offers a wide range of services for pregnant women. From counseling to classes, clients are welcome to take advantage of the center's free services. The pantry is filled with items for babies and moms. The following is an example of the wonderful work done at this site.

Heather was homeless, unemployed and using drugs when she found out she was pregnant. She was recently released from jail and had violated her parole. Heather was now on the run from the law. She had initially wanted to abort her pregnancy, but could not afford to pay for the abortion procedure. She refused to start prenatal care due to her drug usage. Her friends became very worried about her and they encouraged her to start services at the Women's Care Center.

During her first visit to the Women's Care Center, Heather was quiet and reserved. She was hesitant to disclose much of her situation to her counselor. She wondered why her friends had wanted her to come. Heather had a positive pregnancy test and found out she was much farther along than she thought. She told the counselor, against all odds, that she wanted to parent.

After this visit, the Women's Care Center counselor stayed in close contact with Heather. After the birth of her baby girl, Heather was sent to jail for violating her parole, and her daughter was placed in foster care. Upon her release from jail, Heather moved into a transitional house. She started regularly attending parenting classes at the Women's Care Center, and also started meeting with a counselor for goal setting bi-weekly sessions. Heather was strongly determined and set a goal to gain custody of her daughter.

Today, Heather has made much progress! She is off of parole and working part time as a waitress. She meets with her substance abuse counselor weekly. Heather is still attending parenting classes at the Women's Care Center.

Since Heather's first visit to the center, she has accomplished several of her personal goals and has gained regular visitation with her daughter. With each new step, and the support of her counselor at Women's Care Center, Heather grows closer to gaining custody of her daughter. The Women's Care Center looks forward to supporting Heather in her parenting journey in the years to come.

V. Conclusion

The Royal Oak location of Catholic Charities of Southeast Michigan's Project Hope is along a main road and is handy for clients traveling via public transportation. The waiting room is clean and welcoming. The counseling room is private and comfortable. The following is an example of the wonderful work done at this site.

Sierra came to Project Hope pregnant with her first child. She was young, married, and unsure of how to care for a child. When first meeting her case manager she was quiet and shy. Her family assumed she would wait until she went to college and graduated before she and her husband started to have children. The news of her pregnancy came as a shock and while they said they supported her decision to have the baby they would not assist her in anyway. When she had questions about her pregnancy her mother would change the subject, so she would often look things up online, which only scared and confused her.

A friend that worked with her told Sierra about Project Hope and suggested she call us. Sierra was afraid and embarrassed that she knew so little about what was going on with her body, so it took her a few months before she made the call. When she first came into Project Hope she was 30 weeks pregnant, with questions about feeding her baby, how to get the baby to sleep, how to dress him, and even how to swaddle him. As she talked with her case manager, she would tell her stories about her grandparents giving babies water to drink, so that they could save money on formula. She was getting ready to stock up on "baby water" so she could be prepared with the right water.

Her case manager went through the importance of giving babies breastmilk/formula and not filling their little bellies with water, and how important nutrients are for infants. She taught Sierra how to swaddle the baby, how to change the baby's diaper, and how to dress the baby, or undress the baby when the baby had a soiled diaper that was leaking all over.

Throughout the weeks before her baby was born the case manager watched Sierras' confidence in being a mother grow. Her fear soon turned to happiness and her unease began to dissipate. The day she delivered her son she called her case manager and sent her pictures of herself with her husband and baby. When the case manager came to the hospital to see the family the husband hugged her and thanked her for all of her help.

Sierra's baby is now 7 months old. He is thriving and happy. Her family started to come around after her son was born and now helps take care of him so she can take classes at the local community college. Sierra comes to see her case manager every month and states that the help that she has received from Project Hope was/is literally a life line to her. She doesn't know what she would do without the assistance she receives through Project Hope. Not only the material baby items, but the emotional support that she needed and still needs from someone who doesn't judge her for having her baby so young.

V. Conclusion

The Detroit location of Catholic Charities of Southeast Michigan is located in the same building as the St. Francis Cabrini Clinic. The counseling room is private and holds many pantry items for the moms. The following is an example of the wonderful work done at this site.

Gloria first came in two years ago with her second pregnancy. She then came in again this past time for her third pregnancy which she had not planned for. She was feeling lost. Finances were strained, her husband had limited education and lost his job. Their apartment was bursting with the prospect of five people in a small two-bedroom space. She cried and said she had nowhere to come but back to me to talk.

Gloria's family lives in California and she was already feeling pressure and isolation. Having her come back to Project Hope with her honest concerns and discussions, continued a trust we had already established and could renew. As we proceeded to talk Gloria began to embrace her pregnancy and felt more confident and able to continue with her pregnancy and felt hopeful not hopeless.

Using other support resources within the clinic and surrounding area, as well as our counseling, pantry, and education materials, Gloria embraced her pregnancy. She managed her stress through her husband's unemployment and financial crisis and is happy to say he now has new and better employment and stability for the family, which includes the new baby.

Happily, I am able to report that Gloria had a beautiful baby girl (she had two boys) and feels confident with her parenting, able to cope well with her still small apartment, is developing wonderful parenting skills of a mother of three, and so enjoys the pantry clothing and supplies.

Many times Gloria has stated that she would not have been so happy and confident if she had not been able to come here. She never leaves without a hug and a sincere thanks for being able to come to the program for help and counseling. She is still far away from her family and friends in California but is able to video chat on the new phone she was able to buy. She continues to come regularly with the baby and the boys for support, education, and care as she moves forward. Gloria is a beautiful caring and loving mother.

V. Conclusion

Pregnancy Aid is located in an easily located building along Mack Avenue in Detroit. The waiting area and counselling rooms are private and comfortable. The baby boutique is organized and well stocked. The following is an example of the terrific work done by the staff at this site.

Jasmine came to Pregnancy Aid, 18 years old and pregnant. The baby's father was incarcerated and Jasmine's best friend was encouraging Jasmine to abort. We confirmed the pregnancy with a self-administered pregnancy test, and then learned after giving her an ultrasound that her baby had a gestational age of six weeks and one day - old enough to detect a heartbeat but not quite old enough to garner unyielding protection from a mom surprised by a pregnancy.

Initially, Jasmine's mom was excited about her pregnancy, her first grandchild. However, Jasmine, felt ill prepared for this pregnancy. It was unplanned. She struggled with bipolar disorder, had only completed up to the 11th grade in high school, and she had no job. She was reluctant to initiate prenatal care because she did not have reliable transportation.

We helped her arrange transportation to her doctor's appointments. We encouraged her to attend our classes on healthy lifestyles and parenting. We also connected her with housing resources when at one point, after a heated argument with her mother, her mother wanted her to move out. Jasmine decided to continue with the pregnancy.

Jasmine attended our classes throughout her pregnancy and safely delivered a baby boy. She gathered lots of baby supplies, emotional support and practical parenting knowledge. Her path is not a straight path to self-sufficiency but is an active path. She has reconciled with her mother and has plans, through a state program, to work and complete her high school education. Jasmine benefited from every aspect of our program and now has a beautiful baby and a more focused life plan. She should consider herself a success.

V. Conclusion

The Lennon Center is easily found and has plenty of parking. The waiting room is comfortable and the counseling room is inviting. The Lennon Center has free pantry items for moms and their babies. The following shows the wonderful work done at this site:

It was a Thursday before Easter and I was just about to head out to make a presentation at a local outreach office. My phone rang. It was from another pregnancy center that wanted to know if we would be open on Good Friday. I said, "No," but asked how I could help. The woman explained that she had just gotten a call from a man who has a friend who is a Lyft driver. The driver had just picked up a woman who was heading to an abortion provider. The driver told her she didn't need to do that and he would find someone who could help her in this crisis. She had just been released from jail, was on parole, and pregnant. She had trouble believing him. The driver called his friend who then called the Lennon Center.

I asked for the young woman's phone number. My plan was to talk to her on the phone and promise we would give her a chance to look discuss her situation on Tuesday. Upon receiving her number, I called and began to counsel her on the phone. She was open to listening. She said she had no way out and felt that abortion was her only alternative. I asked her to take the weekend and just take care of herself. She was planning on moving soon and had lots to do. We made plans to see each other the following Tuesday.

We exchanged texts over the weekend and met on Tuesday. After her pregnancy test she seemed to be in a much better place and was more relaxed. We sat and talked and she said she was committed to keeping her baby. She was beginning a new job and would plan on coming to parenting class as soon as she had her new schedule.

In addition, the man that made the initial contact was able to raise over $300 through donations from his church. I passed those donations along to her. Our Real Alternatives reimbursements have allowed us to reach out to those who are extremely vulnerable to abortion and all its horrible consequences for women.
